Albert Einstein Quotes

"In order to form an immaculate member of a flock of sheep one must, above all, be a sheep."

"To obtain an assured favourable response from people, it is better to offer them something for their stomachs instead of their brains."

"He, who joyfully marches to music rank and file, has already earned my contempt. He has been given a large brain by mistake, since for him the spinal cord would surely suffice. "

"Great spirits have always found violent opposition from weak minds."

"It is easier to denature plutonium than to denature the evil spirit of man."

"Technological progress is like an axe in the hands of a pathological criminal."

"Not everything that counts can be counted and not everything that can be counted counts."

"The further the spiritual evolution of mankind advances, the more certain it seems to me that the path to genuine religiosity does not lie through the fear of life, and the fear of death, and blind faith, but through striving after rational knowledge."

"Our task must be to free ourselves by widening our circle of compassion to embrace all living creatures and the whole of nature and its beauty."

"You can't solve problems by using the same kind of thinking you used when you created them."

"There have already been published by the bucketsful such brazen lies and utter fictions about me, that I would long since have gone to my grave if I had allowed myself to pay attention to them. "

"Peace cannot be kept by force. It can only be achieved by understanding."
