

In 2019, I see myself as a willing speaker on behalf of God who started openly speaking to me in 2002. He explained to me the Laws of the Universe. By 2006, I wrote them up and they are since available to anyone under the name of “The Cathar Testament”.

I was affected by the weight of the suffering that descended from my suspension in 2010, by the death of two vulnerable Slovaks who trusted and needed me, and by the birth of a disabled child the mother was due to abort. But I would never contemplate harming myself, or to take my own life, due to my commitments towards others and because suicide, as a form of an escape from the pressures of life, is an unacceptable solution to someone who is a Cathar.

Instead, I dedicated myself to my spiritual work and to writing. My realizations in form of many essays and articles attracted readers in all parts of the World. The Cathar Testament and my articles on the Cathars had been reproduced on professional webs in English, Slovak and Czech. A novel inspired by Cathar history by an established international author based in Germany was published in Slovakia in 2013 and a similar e-book in English was launched in the same year. Both authors were in touch with me during the writing of their works. My own research on the Shroud of Turin in 2013 has proven that the man in the Shroud almost certainly could not have been Jesus Christ, but most likely was Jacques de Molay, the last Grandmaster of the Knights Templar. The Shroud is genuine without any doubt, but the fact has unacceptable consequences for the Roman Church that has money to entice endless further investigation casting doubt on something that is already proven. The godless public prefers stories of fiddle and fake, rather than of the Truth finding its way into the light despite endless webs of lies and deceit, which sums up the history of the Shroud. While living in Europe, I was fluent in seven European languages. My PhD is in Sociology and Philosophy and I am a British academic author in the field of international business management.

The events and how others approached them meant, that I have lost interest to participate in society, which I feel, loses the right to call it-self “human” on the day when police start persecuting those who stand up against crime, physicians look the other way as bureaucrats kill, and state television broadcasts lies to eliminate the witness. God speaks to me and although I wish nothing more than to return to Him, I now look forward to the future.

God told me in 2010, that “he will grind to dust” everyone participating at hurting me. It seems that by 2016 Justice was done with those who harmed me in 2010. Carl Beech, the monster who masterminded my victimisation, was sentenced to 18 years in jail in 2019. His mother is a priest. Those responsible for subsequent cover ups, together with anyone who was responsible for a renewed campaign of hate and lies against me via the Mail Online and the Hello! magazine in 2017, which involved the personal biographer of the Duchess of Cambridge, are meeting with Justice. The 2017 campaign against me was a particularly nasty back stab, because it took place after Beech was already in troubles and Chris Geiger was already exposed as a crook and a liar thrown out of all serious venues.

Robbed and made destitute by the lies and persecution, in 2018, I used a birthday present as a deposit for the rebuild of my outdated Dhaxem.com website that carries the Cathar Testament. I became the victim of unprecedented abuse, insults and bungles by the contractor, webcreationuk. After 10 months of what I can only describe as a nightmare, the company retained my work and my money and left me with nothing. On making my experience with webcreationuk public in 2019, they pledged to take the strongest retaliatory action against me. They implied that they are condemning me for differing from the crooks who victimised me, i.e. Beech and Geiger. God told me that webcreationuk joined his queue to be ground to dust.

God tells me that the experiences I was put through as a loving and innocent human being, will in not too distant future be taught about in schools, and will eventually lead to this World becoming a better place. There is nothing more that I could want.

In February 2018, I spoke on a channel about my relationship with God:

The events taking place had been predicted for many centuries. The proof that the World did not believe is in that it happened.

The World, as generation before us knew it, ended in 2012, as had been predicted. We have entered a new phase with many revolutionary elements. The first generation of Souls is leaving the incarnational process and new Souls are coming in. The Final Judgment is taking place, while the majority still see only money.

People like to ask about the comparability of education outside of Britain against British qualifications. I can confirm that the British standards did not match the standards expected by the Komenius University in Bratislava. My colleagues who interviewed me for the post of the Research Fellow at the Open University in 1989 told me that I “did not have competition”. I subsequently interviewed candidates qualified as sociologists from British Universities who could not define “culture”. Culture is the main object of sociological study. Culture is represented by the collective predominant patterns of behavior of an ethnicum, or group. (Not by going to the cinema, or the theatre, as the man-in-the-street and some sociology graduates may understand it.)

1969, Entering the Komenius University, Bratislava

1983, First British Passport Gloucestershire

I was born in Bratislava, Slovakia, 28th February 1951, to German mother and father born in Budapest, Hungary. My mother tongue is German. I believe that international diversity is important to stability. My perspective is incompatible with monetary globalism based on exploitation and inequality, while suppressing individuality and free expression. Today’s globalists speak of false equality.

Non-conformist, intrepid freethinker and an outspoken “foreigner” – an inevitable target to exclusion from a society of sheeple in a small town of Cheltenham.

With the support of the Anglo-German Foundation we are jointly conducting an important study of Anglo-German business cooperation. Effective cooperation is of paramount importance to both countries in maintaining and strengthening their respective economic roles in Europe, as well as in the rest of the World after 1992.

With this in mind the study is drawing on experiences of the participating firms and their management. The results which will be communicated both to practicing management and the academic audience will:

- investigate the characteristic differences in management in Britain and in Germany;
- identify typical patterns of success in collaborating contexts;
- present proposals for more effective cooperation.

The study will use well established methods of organizational research, and will focus in particular on four crucial elements:

- organisational structure
- strategic decision making processes
- organisational culture
- managerial outcomes, including effective problem solving and organizational achievement.

The study will be conducted in five phases over a period of two years. Feedback will be given to participating companies. Books, articles and conferences, both in English and German are envisaged.

Mit Unterstützung der Anglo-German-Foundation führen wir eine wissenschaftliche Untersuchung zu englisch-deutschen Kooperationen durch. Das Ziel der Studie ist es, die englisch-deutsche Zusammenarbeit im Management zu analysieren. Insbesondere sollen:

- die Probleme kulturübergreifender Zusammenarbeit im Management durchleuchtet, sowie
- Vorschläge zur Verbesserung der englisch-deutschen Zusammenarbeit entwickelt werden.

Die Studie umfaßt die gesamte Bandbreite englisch-deutscher Geschäftsaktivitäten in beiden Ländern. Das Untersuchungsergebnis soll Schlußfolgerungen zu den drei folgenden Punkten enthalten:

- Die Steigerung der Effektivität der Zusammenarbeit.
- Die Analyse der Unterschiede in Organisationsstruktur, Unternehmenskultur und Strategieumsetzung in Großbritannien und Deutschland.
- Die Evaluierung typischer Erfolgsmuster im spezifischen (situativen) Umfeld.

Die kooperierenden Unternehmen werden bezüglich der Organisationsstruktur, der Strategie, der Unternehmenskultur sowie ihrer Methoden der Entscheidungsfindung untersucht. Jedes beteiligte Unternehmen erhält relevante Ergebnisse, um seine Manager in die Lage zu versetzen, ihre Methoden kulturübergreifender Zusammenarbeit zu verbessern. Diese Studie ist insbesondere im Hinblick auf die kommenden Entwicklungen des gemeinsamen Marktes von großem Interesse.

Only years later and after realising that I was a Cathar, that my Cathar nature governed my thinking and permeated all of my traits, did I realise that my concept of cross-cultural co-operation was, also, a Cathar concept. It proposed fair collaboration across nations, each nation on equal terms, to derive synergistic results from the differences in the cultural traits of each by the optimal complementary division of tasks between them.

My Anglo-German work was hugely popular with practicing managers. Further research into additional combinations, of which Anglo-French was planned as next, was thwarted by a lack of funding. My academic work required the endorsement of other academics, which was not and could not be forthcoming. The British business academia knows only profit and how to expand it globally, while exploiting different markets and opportunities. I believe that the correct name for this is "greed". Premature, forced and unjust globalism is doomed to fail and it will lead to the deaths of those forcing it. It contradicts the Laws of the Universe.

My concept is the only one leading to permanent welfare and global peace. In 1996 Michael Heseltine showed an interest in my work. With the government falling under Blair, all peaceful solutions to the World were lost. History will know Blair's input by the injustice perpetrated on the Iraqi people and the plundering of Iraq, lying to the World about non-existing weapons of mass destruction and the death of Dr David Kelly, an honourable citizen.

Dear Dagmar,

Thanks for your letter of 1 October. Please find enclosed a cheque for £200, as agreed. I enjoyed the seminar greatly, as did everyone I talked to, and I think that enjoyment was evidenced in the lively discussion over the splendid lunch provided by Coopers. An excellent event all round, I thought, and evidence of the continuing relevance and interest of the study.

With best wishes for the future,

Yours,

As the consequence of my unique pioneering work from which Britain and the rest of the World could have benefited, I was sent on the dole, became branded a "foreign sponger" and persecuted for defending myself against small-town Nazi hate. This seemed connected to the Cheltenham authorities, including the police. I was harassed and abused, including by the Courts and the legal system. The Court, in person of the Judge Thomas, in 2005, decided against me and against all evidence, based solely on my place of birth and the complaints system in person of a Max Mulvaney decreed that not to have constituted a criminal act on part of Thomas.

When the doors to further academic research closed in 1996, I was guided to discover myself through spirituality. The “extraordinary” experiences throughout my life, starting in early childhood, fell into place and made sense. While the exclusion from the business World was disappointing and hurtful, I soon felt happier than before, through the new door just opened. It was like an outer crust peeling off me to feel a more genuine self underneath.

1998, On a healing retreat with friends

When the malicious BBC film was made about me in 2012, instead of becoming the victim of violence and abuse, which will have been the aim, I was overwhelmed by the love and support extended to me by my spiritual friends, some of whom I have not seen for more than fifteen years. Of the hundreds of candidates that passed through my workshops, to this date a small handful remains faithful to the spiritual path forged. In 2002, even this door closed for me, while I had to learn that greed for money did not bypass people attracted to spirituality. At a point of deep sadness in November 2002, my Spirit Guide started openly speaking to me and he gave me his name as Lysseus, the enlightened one. Only years later did the Guide reveal to me that it is him who I am praying to, that he is the acting God and he told me about my purpose and mission in life. That made all that followed easier to bear, as it gave the most wonderful of meanings and an end worth pursuing.

Ancient art that harnesses our natural energy

Do healing hands hold the answers?

Illuminated by a flickering candle, embraced by the soothing sound of music, people from all walks of life come together to practise and learn an ancient healing art.

Forgotten for centuries, this is Reiki and it could be just what the doctor ordered for the stresses and strains of modern living.

Originating from Asia, it is a form of healing where energy is channelled from one person to another through the hands.

Claimed to have a positive effect on many conditions from bee stings to chronic illness, it has only become widely available in the past decade.

Reiki teacher and practitioner Dr Dagmar Ebster-Grosz PhD runs an Understanding Reiki Workshop in Cheltenham where visitors can see how it works.

After introductions, an explanation of Reiki and 10 minutes of meditation and relaxation, group members of all levels demonstrate their skills.

Volunteers lie on a table while the group take turns giving a 20-minute Reiki session.

Participants are first asked if they object to physical contact, much of which is on the feet, before being told to relax.

Depending on how many people are at the meeting, two or three people surround the person on the table.

With soothing music as the only sound in the room, the practitioners pass their hands over and above the volunteer's body. As they move some people feel immediate and intense heat in the corresponding area before a gentle sense of well-being and relaxation pervades every pore.

Practitioners hold their hands a few inches from the body and head, changing position every few minutes. They simultaneously work on the feet, gently massaging each toe before moving up the ankle.

Dr Ebster-Grosz, who took up Reiki teaching and Never heard of Reiki? A Cheltenham workshop is being run to introduce you to this ancient form of healing. Lystra Maisey found out more practice full time in 1996, said: "The workshop is a way of introducing new people to Reiki and also provides continual training for those who are learning for themselves."

"The ever present natural healing energies around us are focused into the therapist's hands where they are channelled into the recipient."

Illness, fatigue and stress can restrict the flow of energy inside the body, which Reiki can help to release.

Following the session visitors can ask questions. Dr Ebster-Grosz added: "There is a danger that all too often it is presented as a hands-on technique that will make one feel better. There is so much more to it than this."

In a full session, lasting at least an hour, the treatment is much more thorough.

"It's like comparing a three course meal with trying something out at a buffet. The main benefit of the workshop is to allow those initiated in Reiki to practise and let visitors see how it works."

Dr Ebster-Grosz, who has written The Nature of Reiki, (Green Life, £10.95), combines methods of healing with the use of essential oils, crystals and herbal teas.

She offers private consultations at the Reiki Centre in New Barn Avenue and also runs a monthly Reiki meeting.

The workshop is held on the second Wednesday of the month at Parmoor House in Lypiatt Road and costs £4. For more details call 01242 580287.

Mr Butler, 62, had looked into spiritual healing about four years ago.

He said: "My partner is a reflexologist and mentioned Reiki so I became involved but it wasn't really a conscious decision.

"Since I started I have experienced big changes in my life including changing my career. I now have a different perception of other people. I am less judgmental, and feel people are only trying to do their best for themselves.

"I have become more realistic, and am not so afraid of things any more."

REIKI FACTFILE

■ Reiki (pronounced ray-key) is a generic word in Japan and is used to describe many types of healing and spiritual work.

■ The ki part is the same word as Chi or Qi, the Chinese word for the Universal Life Force energy which underlies everything.

■ It is thought to have originated around ancient China and Tibet and disappeared for centuries until discovered by a Christian boy's school teacher Dr Mikao Usui in the late 1800s.

■ If you have a medical condition it is recommended you see a conventional doctor in addition to Reiki.

■ Because Reiki is an art rather than a technique, each master and practitioner has a unique style.

■ There are more than 50,000 Reiki masters and one million practitioners worldwide.

■ Children can learn Reiki while plants and animals can also benefit.

■ The ability to learn Reiki is transferred from teacher to student by a process called attunement.

■ During the attunement the Reiki master systematically works around the body and may use one or more special breathing techniques.

■ Once you have received the attunement you can treat yourself and others.

■ Reiki is practised and taught in three separate but corresponding stages.

■ Stage I concentrates on the physical, Stage II on the emotional and mental state, while the final stage focuses on the spiritual or soul.

I knew on the day I met him that Geiger, the crook and cancer impostor who was made to star in the BBC fabrication about me, was a person deriving satisfaction and rewards from the suffering of a large number of people and I wrote that to him in an e-mail to a mailbox monitored by the BBC. Although it was him who warned me, the Spirit Guide asked me to go along, because the outcome will serve the highest good of all and will be worthwhile. The instigators and the makers of the film thought that they could trap me. Instead, they trapped themselves and exposed a most heartless con – an impostor claiming for money to have had cancer in order to deceive genuine sufferers on behalf of a highly profitable World cancer trade.

Born with a deep love and compassion for animals, over a period of forty years, I adopted a large number of dogs previously owned by other people, or found as stray. Several of my dogs lived to over 18 years. I am also an activist supporting animal welfare causes around the World.

I relinquished my former citizenship. Despite my second home country not treating me always kindly, I love the British people for their sense of fairness. At no point was I left without a friend who stood by me and supported me at times of hardship, usually with a wonderful sense of humour and courage not easily seen elsewhere.

I was infinitely proud to be British on the day that the Brits have voted in a referendum to leave the European Union, even though Britain was the country least enslaved by the prison of nations. I see the British spirit of independence and freedom as the most valuable trait that a nation can have and I hope, on behalf of the people, that it will be applied to full consequence and to the benefit of all in Britain and beyond.

The following was inserted on 24th November 2018

I am worried about the future of the Monarchy, as God tells me that another wave of detrimental events will happen, similar to the “Annus Horribilis”, if the Crown fails to disassociate itself completely from the Hello! magazine and from all and anyone who initiated, or took part in the malice that this publication and the Duchess of Cambridge personal biographer Claudia Joseph disseminated in 2017 about me.

Update 23rd December 2019

The “Annus Horribilis” was described as a piece of cake against 2019 for the monarchy. The warning above was ignored. I was victim to new discrimination. While the VIPs got their alleged Justice following the conviction of Beech, the same firm of solicitors that secured compensation for one of the VIPs did not bother to reply to me. Justice for me is sacrificed in order to save an apology by the establishment and that includes a royal apology. Now God tells me that the monarchy will fall, and all persons that hurt me will be ground to dust, regardless of their status.

The horrendous lies about me by the BBC, which is an organization promoting the interests of Israel, were disseminated with Israeli interest in mind, such as the profits of the World cancer trade. God holds Israel responsible for the lies about me and he expects these to be withdrawn with an apology and compensation. Should this be ignored, God will show his will by action affecting Israel.
